- WHY: Computer-aided learning is an integral part of the 21st Century classroom. Harnessing this technology to achieve better outcomes requires the right set of tools for administrators and teachers. To maximize the effectiveness of the online learning environment, these tools must:
- Enable remote management and support of computer labs
 - Allow the instructor to monitor all student activity from his/her workstation
 - Remove distractions by limiting access to the web, social media, apps and other content
 - Facilitate interaction through audio, chat and broadcast functionality
 - Control student machines, enable co-browsing, sharing of teacher and student monitors
 - Evaluate comprehension using easy voting and testing features to gauge student understanding
 - Work effectively on a variety of devices, platforms and architectures, including PCs, Macs, Linux, thin clients, tablets and smart phones.
